DEDICATION

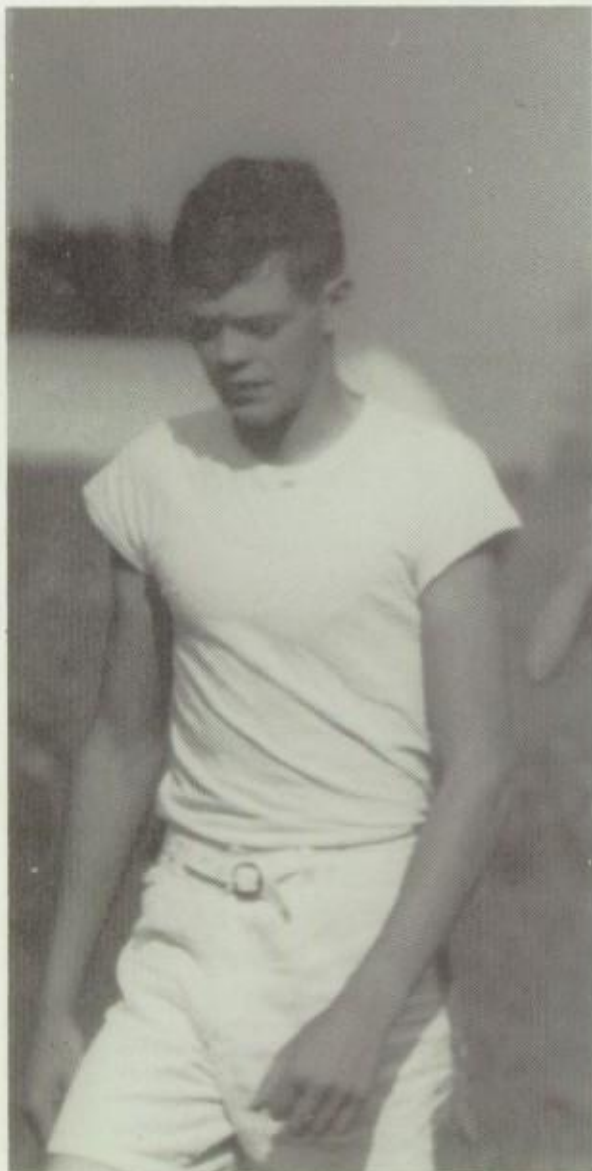

To You Mrs. Burkholder
In Appreciation for:
—cooking meals especially for the student's pleasure.
—a variety of menus throughout the week.
—special dishes on special days.
—extra effort on Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners.
—hours spent in preparation of Chili Supper.
—understanding in reserving
seconds for growing boys.
We thank you with the dedication of this 1966-67 Reverie.

EACH MOMENT

OF EACH DAY

PEOPLE PROGRESS.

AFTER THEY GO, RESULTS APPEAR AND IMPRESSIONS ARE LEFT.

THEY WILL TAKE WITH THEM
ONLY A FRACTION.
THE REMAINDER
WILL BE LEFT FOR OTHERS.

THEIR SUCCESSES

AND THEIR FAILURES

WILL GUIDE THOSE WHO FOLLOW.

The instructors progress as well as the pupils, resulting in:

- cooperation from a former difficult student.

- many more alert students instead of bored, because of a well-prepared lesson.

- more A's and B's on report cards than the preceding term.

FACULTY:

Advice from Mr. Swartzendruber is welcomed by Dale Marner.

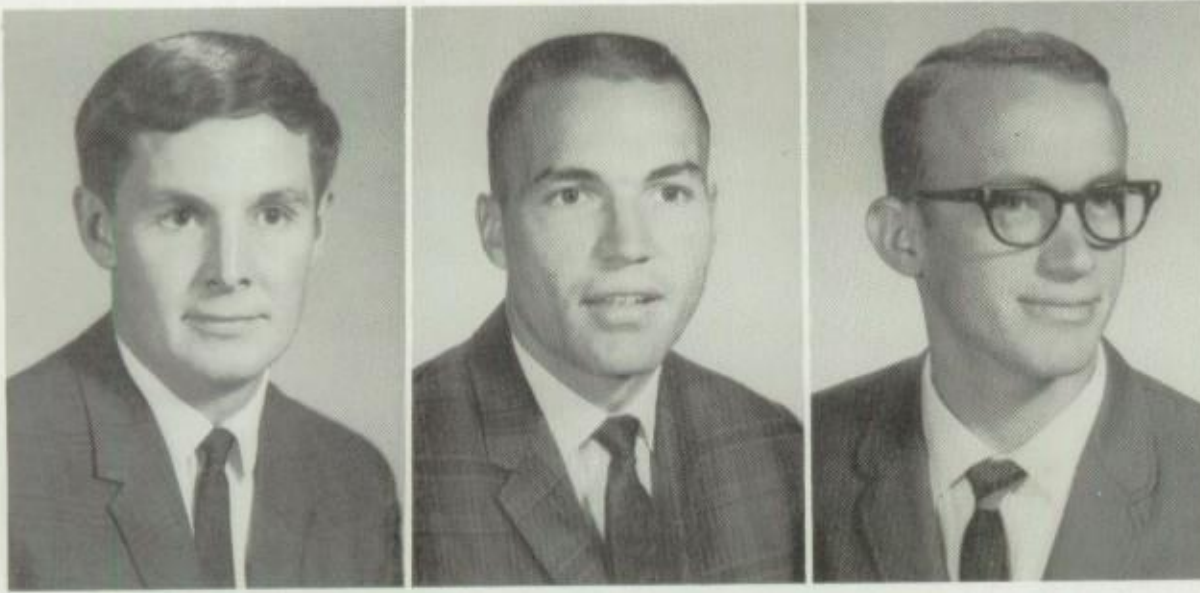

STRUCTURE YEAR'S PLANS AT FACULTY RETREAT,

What the faculty member accomplishes, often goes unnoticed by the students. The varying situations of preparing for a class he must teach, attempting to interest his pupils through different techniques, and having a deep concern for each individual who comes to him, face the teacher daily. Besides his main duty, he has many other tasks such as chaperoning a class party, directing the junior-senior play or sponsoring a gospel team during Thanksgiving vacation.

But the faculty member's life is not all serious. Sometimes he and co-workers roar with laughter at some shared joke while the students passing by glance at the group with questioning and amused looks. Often he and a student will become better acquainted through an argument or a humorous conversation. And many times he shows his pupils, through a classroom situation, the interesting personality they know little about. How the teacher is best known, though, is as a Christian example full of concern, laughter and appreciation for life.

During the year, the school board was reorganized to make a less awkward structure which will facilitate better handling and working with problems. Monthly meetings are held to take care of problems concerning school facilities and school improvements.

Efficient and hard-working staff members help to keep a high school running smoothly. Pizza Specials, newly waxed halls and a joke shared with the secretary make the school day more pleasant. Though these services often go unnoticed, they would be quickly missed if absent.

Students advance their learning, resulting in:

- complicated symbols and equations unerased on a blackboard.
- an untidy kitchen following a Home Ec. class period.
- an array of art class pencil sketches on a bulletin board.

ACADEMIC

English II students spend a class period in discussion groups.

CREATIVE WRITING

Mood and talent are put into Ed Hershberger's Art I ceramic creation.

Junior English allows students to use their initiative in creative writing. The practice gained in writing and criticizing other students' written work matures their ability in writing.

The foreign language courses open new doors into a different culture. The special days of Christmas and Easter offer opportunities for some students to sing Spanish songs with the accompaniment of maracas, guitar and guiro. Singing is also done by German students and many times the gay and lilting melodies of the German people can be heard on all floors.

Home Economics classes broaden the domestic talent of both fellows and girls. Home Economics III places its emphasis on family relations, while the first and second year classes take a general course and draw house plans. Giant cinnamon rolls baking in the oven show the efforts of the fellows as they try their hand at baking.

Art I and II classes give students a chance to become acquainted with the fundamentals of Art. A fish mobile, made by Art I, adds a decorative note to the front entrance.

Students in the new creative writing class criticize each others work.

Miss Kanagy's Spanish II students scramble to see who can pick up the most candy and nuts after breaking the Christmas piñata.

CHALLENGES JUNIOR WRITERS.

Senior Home Ec. boys anticipate sampling another of their concoctions.

Schedule conflicts are evident in congested hallways at the beginning of second semester.

ADVANCED BIOLOGY EXPANDS

Mr. Lichty's American History class is viewed by a passing student.

"X" and "Y" are the central characters for students taking algebra. For those who need a review of the basics in solving problems, Mathematics I is offered. Parallelograms, squares, and isosceles triangles are only a few of many figures and theories of Geometry. Math IV gives students interested in more advanced mathematics a chance to grapple with problems in trigonometry and advanced geometry.

Dirty test tubes combined with the odor of burned sugar bring variety to the daily routine of Chemistry class. General Science prepares students with those facts needed later in more advanced classes. Physics acquaints students with the laws that affect man's everyday life. Biology brings more meaning to those taking Advanced Biology where they study the growth of frog and chicken embryos.

Freshmen and sophomores become better acquainted with the world as they take World Geography and World History. Juniors learn of the Connecticut Compromise and Articles of Confederation in United States History. American Government, Sociology, Occupations, Readings in the Social Studies, and Readings in American Government are electives in the Social Studies area. A new course, Economics, has been added this year.

Classmates help Karen D. Miller produce carbon dioxide by the water displacement in the chemistry lab.

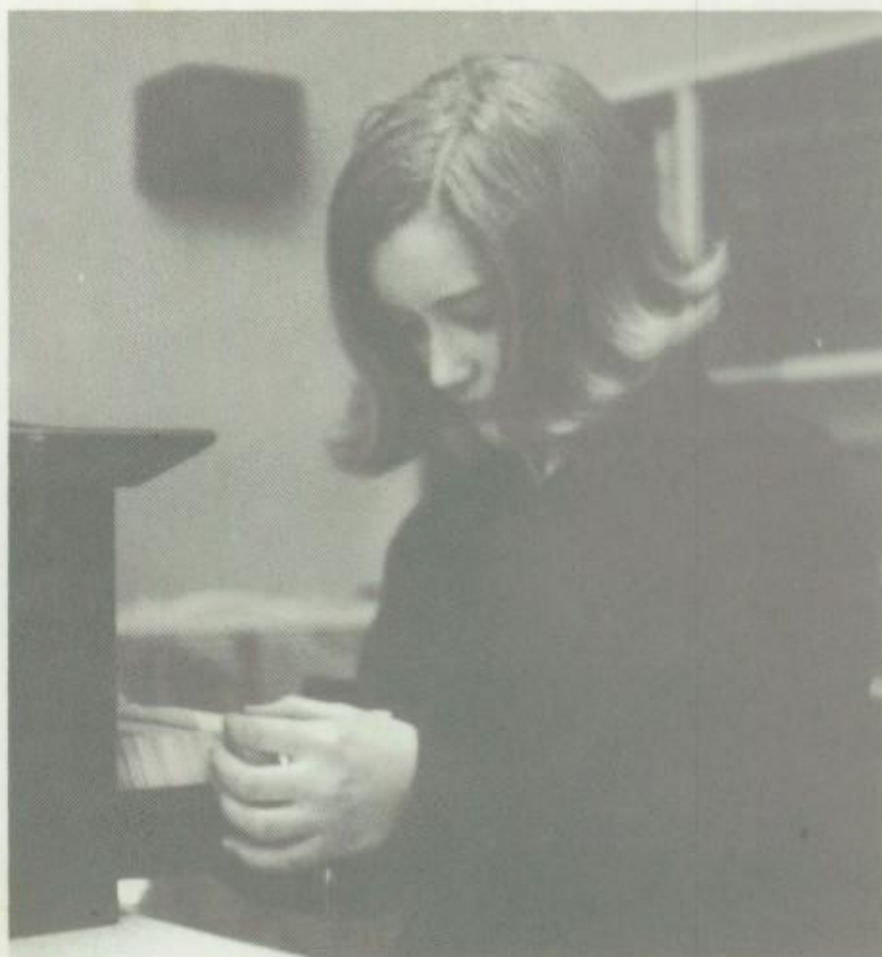

ELECTIVES.

Joyce Yoder and Dave Slabach check the progress of their experimental tadpole in Advanced Biology.

Exercise requirements in PE include jumping rope as shown here by Art Swartzendruber.

Nancy Kinsinger searches the card catalogue for Bible references.

BIBLE CLASSES

Bible IV students prepare to take notes as Mr. Yoder begins a discussion on the reality of God.

Striving for accuracy, students attempt to better their previous records in typing class.

SHARE INFORMALLY.

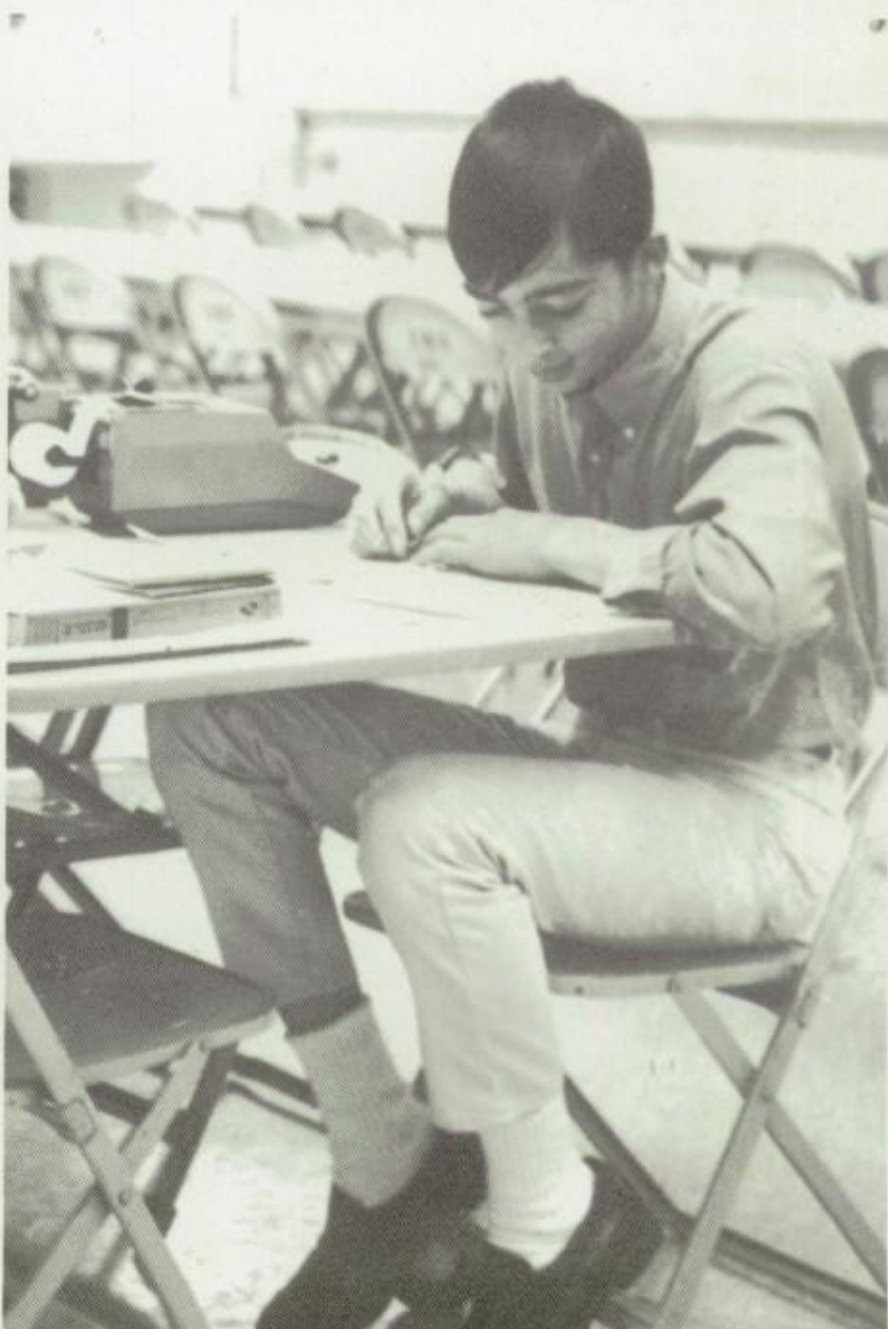

Abraham, Paul, Menno Simons, and Daniel Kauffman are names of importance to students enrolled in the semester Bible courses. Freshmen review the prophets and events of Old Testament History. Sophomores scan selected New Testament books and delve into the teachings of Jesus. Juniors become involved in a study of the church, beginning with the early Christian Church and continuing through to the Mennonite Church today. Seniors question and discuss the beliefs of Christianity and the Mennonite Faith throughout Bible doctrines.

Typing I class acquaints students with the basic fundamentals of typing, while Typing II enables students to make practical application of what they learned. General Business, Bookkeeping and Shorthand I also encourage and prepare students to enter the business world after graduation.

Shop was offered during second semester for fellows interested in it.

The staccato rhythm of a ball plus the accompanying thunder of running feet illustrate a typical physical education class. About one-third of the class period consists of calisthenics with a variety of names such as grasshoppers, burpees, and jumping jacks. Basketball, tumbling, volleyball, ping-pong, tennis and other sports enlarge the students ability in various athletic fields.

Loren Fisher works diligently to finish his bookkeeping assignment.

MUSIC CLASS AND SMALL

Junior Men's Quartet: Rich Miller, Dennis Miller, Dean Rhodes, Galen Yoder.

Merry notes falling from recorders illustrate a new kind of training for Music I. Besides learning to play these, studies of the form and theory of hymns, sight reading, rhythm experiences and learning to direct singing are all included to give students training in the basic music skills.

Advanced Music class also worked with recorders. Recorder literature of various periods in music history is studied and some ensemble work is done.

Freshman-Sophomore Chorus is one of the primary ways for underclassmen to gain experience in note reading. Large chorus, composed of juniors and seniors, gives more public performances than does the Freshman-Sophomore chorus. Vesper chorale is a selected group of 34 singers. The highlight of the chorus this year was a trip to Eastern Mennonite High School for a festival.

GROUPS DEVELOP MUSIC SKILLS.

Senior Ladies Sextet: Diane Miller, Linda Leichty, Donna Hershberger, Donna White, Carol Gingerich, Mary Swartzendruber.

Pencil eraser crumbs, wadded pieces of paper, and one lone potato chip sum up only one aspect of the long hours of work spent to publish the Reverie. The syncopated pecks of typewriters, the sudden bursts of laughter and the low voice of a "Good Samaritan" helping a co-worker created the atmosphere for Rev work parties.

Responsibility matured students mentally and socially. Ideas were accepted and rejected; decisions were made and then discarded. Totally different personalities wove together because of a common goal. Printer, photographer, business manager, writer, sponsor, and editor combined each of their fields to finish their product.

REFLECTOR KEEPS STUDENTS

Editor: Mary Hershberger; Sponsor: Mrs. Miller.

Better understanding is created between community and school by the publishing of the Reflector. Editorials, opinion polls and letters to the editor give an opportunity for students to express what they think. Foreign exchange students from IMS write of their experiences to the school and to the public through this way.

All of these articles take planning and thinking. Decisions such as the type of headline, the length of the article and the position of pictures tend to help the editors face responsibility. Behind the scenes are other important staff members such as typists, business managers, writers and proofreaders.

Feelings of accomplishment after seeing the finished product help the staff to forget the tension and the loss of patience when deadlines came and the reporters weren't finished.

"Y" PLANS DISCUSSION

Extension Committee: Sandra Yoder, Jim Yoder, Loren Swartzendruber, Mary Swartzendruber.

One of the central organizations of our school is the Young People's Christian Association. Committees under the leadership of the executive committee plan many of the activities sponsored by the YPCA. Out-of-state and local gospel teams and tract distribution are the functions of the extension committee. The religious life committee plans some programs and collects pledges. Chapel programs are determined by the choice of the chapel committee, and attractive posters announcing important events are made by the publicity committee.

Guiding the religious activities of the school is the purpose of the "Y". It pays for expenses of foreign exchange students who come to IMS and also for those who are sent in exchange. This year Jukka Luotonen, Finland, and Bjarni Olafson, Iceland, were with us. In exchange, two of last year's seniors, Mary Yoder and Myron Graber, went to Germany and Brazil respectively. Next year Sandra Yoder will be the student exchangee from our school.

Chapel Committee: Muriel Miller, Tom Yoder, Pat Swartzendruber, Art Swartzendruber.

Exchange students Jukka Luotonen and Bjarni Olafson from Finland and Iceland respectively, study at IMS this year.

BAA Members: John Kauffman, Don Hartzler, Ken Miller, Don Showalter, Wayne Hershberger.

BAA AND GAA SCHEDULE GAMES.

GAA Members: Marcia Stutzman, Muriel Miller, Miriam Egli, Gloria Yoder, Virginia Rediger.

Boys' and Girls' Athletic Associations work together to arrange the sports program of the school. They plan the games for Friday nights and Activity Periods and help choose the class teams.

Because a few students can receive an athletic award for gaining the highest points in sports participation, BAA and GAA keep count of their scores. They also plan the track events in the spring and the various Varsity-Alumni games.

Each association is composed of one representative from each class and two from the senior class. The Physical Education teachers aid the group in their planning.

Stuco Officers: Dennis Miller, Vice-President; John Bontrager, Treasurer; Larry Miller, President; Nita Nachtigall, Secretary; Dan Miller, Sponsor; Miss Yoder, Sponsor.

STUCO IS STUDENTS' VOICE.

Stuco President: Larry Miller.

This year a tree and bulletin board in the Center Room were decorated with colored lights and other ornaments to add to the Christmas spirit. This was a project of the Student Council, a group of eight class representatives, four executive members and two sponsors.

Stuco serves as a link between the faculty and students. They helped finance the annual Get-Acquainted Party and were responsible for fire drills, dress-up days, and films. A bookstand with a wide variety of paperbacks was opened by Stuco. Selling tickets and ushering at the Audubon Films were also included in their projects.

Stuco Representatives: Frank Yoder, Mary Fisher, Lowell Miller, Jim Yoder, Donna White, Rosie Yoder, Mahlon Yoder, Janice Miller.

SOCIETY GAINS HONOREES.

Before the candle-lighting ceremony, members, John Bontrager, Mary Hershberger and Sandra Yoder, receive their candles.

Again this year students were inducted into the Berean chapter of the National Honor Society. These students gave a program and invited their parents, the faculty, and the student body.

Members of the Society are chosen by a faculty committee on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership, and service. In the area of scholarship a B average must be maintained to qualify. Juniors and seniors make up the larger percentage of those chosen but sophomores may be included as provisional members.

Students enjoy fellowship and fun, resulting in:

—candy bar wrappers and popcorn bags strewn about after a ballgame.

—dirty dishes piled high following the banquet and chili supper.

—messy tables where the make-up committee has worked

ACTIVITIES

5-4-3-2-1 Boom! The rockets shook and the curtains closed. This blastoff was the beginning of the Reverie-Reflector kick-off for this year. The three rockets were called the Moon Goons, Astronuts and Lunartics.

At the end of the campaign, Maxine Troyer had sold the most Reveries and Judy Schlabaugh and Dale Marner tied as the highest seller of the Reflectors. That evening the winning team was discovered through a "To Tell the Truth" program. For the chief entertainment a film, "Raisin in the Sun", was shown. This depicted the kind of life a Negro family had to live because they were not permitted to move into a better neighborhood of white people.

To start the year off well by gaining new friendships, a Get-Acquainted Party is scheduled. This year, mixer games using paper and pencils were played. An impromptu program followed which involved both teachers and students.

OUTINGS

A delicious meal was provided by the cooks for those on the school outing.

Students enjoy hiking along the Cedar River at Palisades Park.

HIGHLIGHT AUTUMN ACTIVITIES

Shuffling through the reds, browns and yellows of autumn leaves and tramping up and down the trails of Palisades Park provided a part of the students' activities at the fall outing this year. The annual tug-of-war and a football scrimmage between the faculty and the varsity on the sandy beach of the Cedar River were the main entertainments. The dinner menu of hot Sloppy Joes counteracted the cool, brisk breeze and brought a little warmth to chilled fingers. Climaxing the outing was a short chapel on a hill above the river. Piling back into cars and buses, students returned to school with a feeling of unity and fun.

Lake Macbride was the destination for the Junior and Senior fellows, but discovering that the area was not open for camping, they left in a torrent of rain. The Ravens and their guitars plus the merry exchange of jokes and laughter entertained the fellows as they headed toward Sugar Bottom Stables. After arriving, a supper consisting of hot dogs and beans was prepared. Although it was cold and windy, the fellows managed to have fun knocking down tents and creating general havoc. The next morning they traveled back to the school to eat breakfast.

Comforting Anne, Mr. Frank assures her the police have gone, and they are still safe.

BACKSTAGE TENSION IS

Mary Swartzendruber applies make-up on Margot at a dress rehearsal.

Frantic meows from Mouschi the cat, a creaking step as Mr. Van Daan tiptoed down the stairs in the darkness and the pounding of the police attempting to break into the hideout of Anne Frank and her family combined to build suspense in the production of "The Diary of Anne Frank." Anne and her family had to go into hiding when Hitler was slowly gaining control of many European countries. The play depicted scenes as Anne had described them in her diary.

Stage set-up, lighting affects and recorded sounds gave evidence that a lot of work had been done to produce the play.

LEADERSHIP AIDS PLANNING

A garden entrance to the Roman courtyard was a main attraction of the banquet.

Planning the Junior-Senior Banquet was an opportunity for students to work together as a class. Long-time preparations, secrecy and a last-minute rush accompanied the anticipated event.

As seniors entered the gym for the 1966 Banquet, oh's and ah's greeted the ears of the juniors. Clear, sparkling water trickling into a pool surrounded by potted plants was the main attraction. Waiters and waitresses were dressed in tunics and sandals to carry out the theme "All Roads Lead to Rome." To climax the evening, Merne Harris gave a talk entitled "When in Rome, Don't."

Diane Miller, Ruth Bontrager, and Muriel Miller prepare the potato salad for the chili supper.

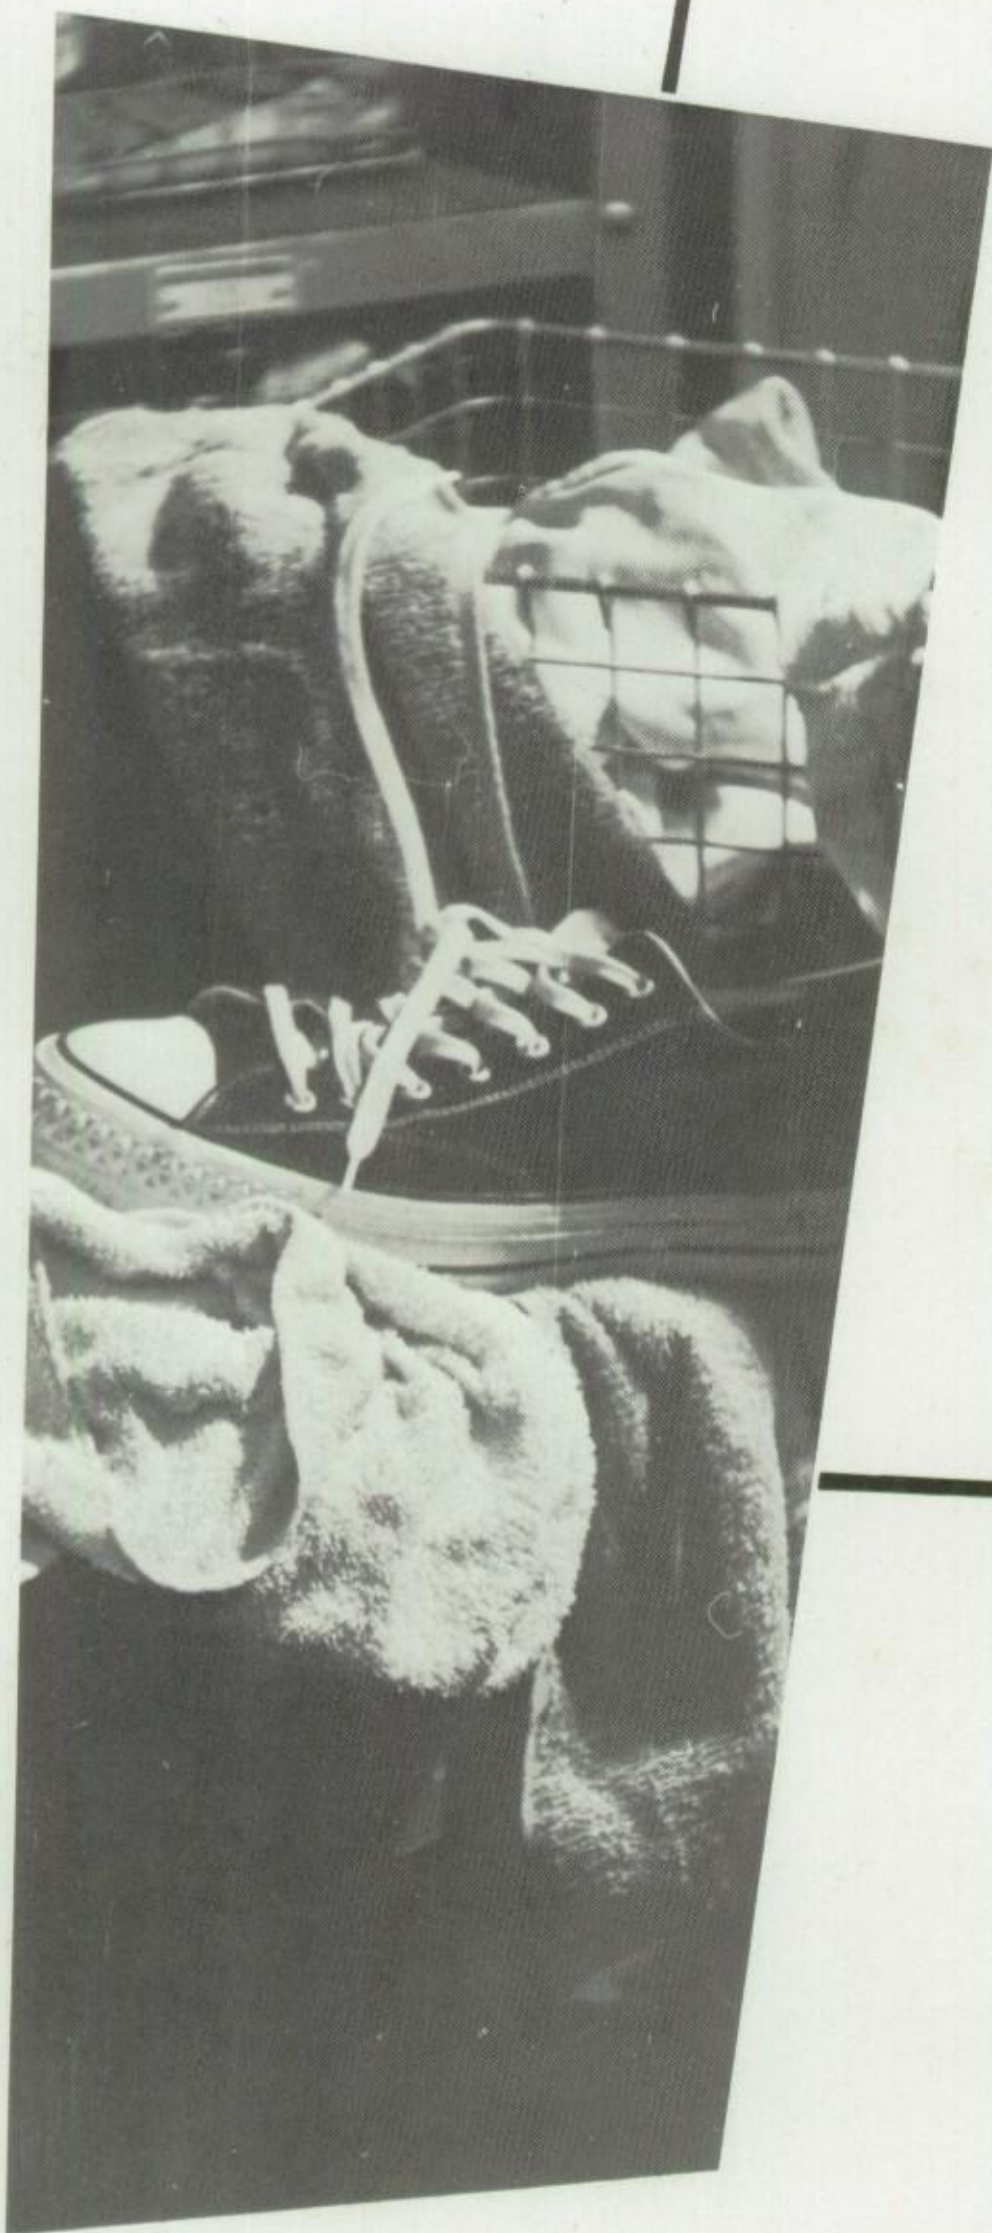

OF CHILI SUPPER AND BANQUET.

Dale Marner and Jerry Yoder cut capers as well as pies before the chili supper.

Sandwiches to spread, chili to cook and celery and carrots to cut were items needing to be finished for the approaching chili supper. The efficient leadership from the sponsors and the class officers helped to bring accomplishment out of chaos. Finally when the night came, chili and oyster soup steamed from their containers, tables laden with pie lay waiting and last minute instructions were given. A colorful nature film supplied the entertainment for the evening.

That night 1370 people enjoyed the traditional meal of soup, sandwiches, potato salad, carrots, celery, pickles and pie. The seniors eagerly figured their profit and then ate the supper they had made themselves.

Many students enter into sports, resulting in:

- experiences in sportsmanship and teamwork.

- active competition for participants.

- joy after defeating the opponent.

VARSITY SQUADS

Excitement runs high whenever varsity-alumni games are scheduled. This year the alumni squelched any idea of varsity triumph. The first game required that only college alumni could play but this decision proved fatal when the alumni carried off a 21 point victory. The second game showed that the varsity had improved in skill. This time the alumni squeezed the narrow victory of a 47-44 score from the varsity.

One of the varsity's highlights was a trip to Kidron, Ohio to participate in the church league. Of the three other schools, the fellows ranked second.

Unlike most years with the varsity girls' team consisting of junior and senior girls, one freshman passed the close competition and joined the team. Like the varsity boys team, the girls were also defeated in the first game with the close score of 22-20. The second game never materialized because of the shortage of players on the alumni team.

Gesturing excitedly, Mr. Swartzendruber spurs Senior A on toward victory.

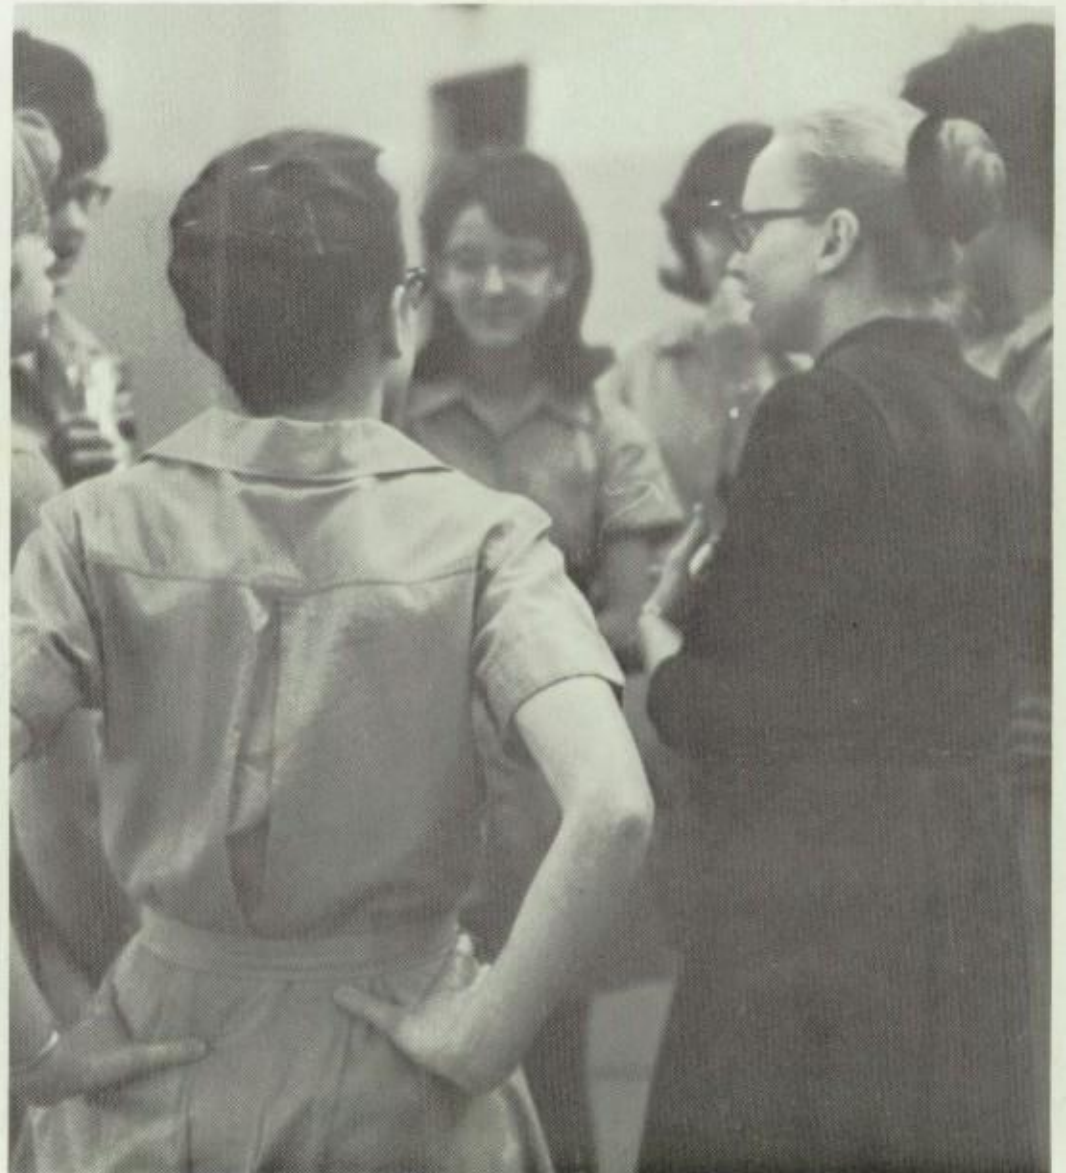

FOR FIRST PLACE.

Freshman A girls listen attentively as Mrs. Miller introduces a new strategy.

Intramural basketball gave opportunities to students to experience the fun of competition. Interested fellows and girls tried out and were grouped into class teams according to their abilities. Class spirit reached a peak when two well-matched teams such as Senior A and Junior A competed. Cheerleaders, a new addition this year, increased the enthusiasm as they encouraged their team to victory.

On top in the boys' league at the end of the season was the Senior A team with a 6—1 record. The Junior A team was in second place with the Senior B and Junior B teams tied for third.

For the girls, the Senior A team topped the standings with a 5—0 record while the Junior A girls held second place with a 4—1 record.

BETTER FACILITIES FOR GAMES.

Filled with energy but uncertain of the game before them, the varsity football team warmed up along the sidelines for the Varsity-Alumni game. A new football field and a full 21-member team to choose from, gave the varsity some advantages. The game was rugged and in the first half, the varsity took an 18 point lead over the alumni. The alumni gained six points but the varsity also scored and the game finished with the varsity winning 24-6.

Intramural football was enthusiastically greeted by the fellows last fall. Teams were made according to classes with nine members on each team. The end of the season found the seniors on top with the juniors in second place.

Clutching the football, Varsity end Daniel Bueno spies an opening and darts toward it.

Ed Hershberger leads the senior soccer team with the opening kick-off. Gil Troyer stays close as Ed Hershberger controls the ball downfield for the senior soccer team.

SOCCER GROWS IN POPULARITY; RIBBONS CLIMAX

Wayne Hershberger hands off to Steve Yoder for the second lap of the 880 yard relay.

Panting and shouting encouragement to their team members, the competing soccer teams charged down the field. Soccer, a new game for the school a few years ago, has gradually grown in popularity. Underclassmen challenged each other during activity periods and the juniors finally won with a 2-0-1 record. Sophomores and seniors tied for second with a 2-2 score and the freshmen finished third with a loss of three games and no wins.

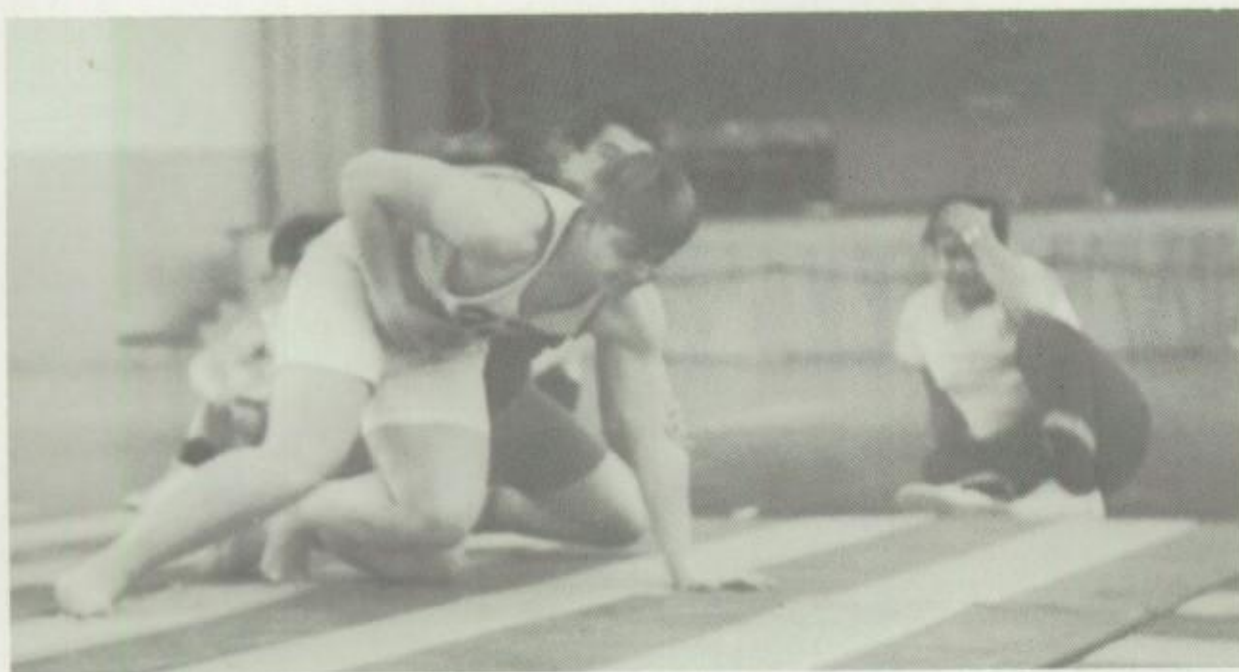

Don Brenneman clears the bar to win first place in the high jump.

Taking the baton from Rosie Yoder, Doris Yoder sprints to break the 440 relay record.

TRACK.

Enthusiastic cheering followed the crack of the gun as the three fellows raced down the track toward the goal 800 yards ahead. Many records were broken at the 1966 track meet which offered one new event, the girls 80-meter hurdles. Tom Yoder broke the 800-yard dash record with a new time of 2:14.3. Mary Swartzendruber ran the 75-yard dash in :9.5. Rosalyn Yoder made two new records, the 440-yard run in 1:13.8 and the 220-yard dash in :26.5. The juniors broke the old 440-yard relay, running it in :59.4. Awards were given to the students with the highest scoring at the end of the track events.

MINOR SPORT COMPETITORS

Miriam Yoder grips the softball bat determinedly, waiting for a good pitch.

Arden Miller swings and then watches the ball apprehensively in a close tennis match.

Rosetta Unternaher and Miriam Egli reach for the ball in an active speedball game.

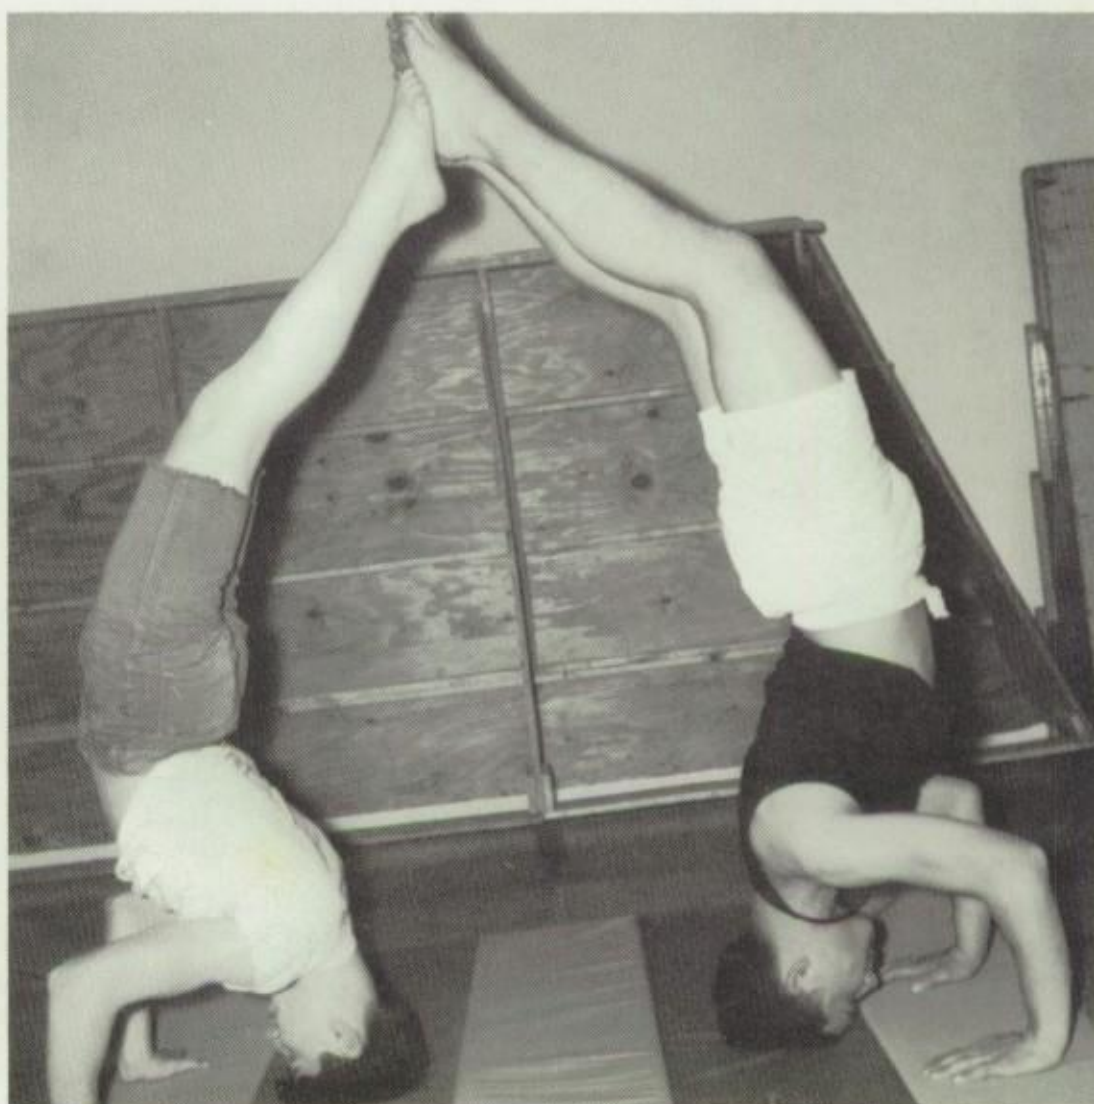

BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Tumbling requires balance, as is evident in the stunt performed by Galen Yoder and Dale Marner.

New in minor sports this fall for the girls was speedball, an active combination of football, basketball and soccer. Girls also engaged in intramural softball, with the senior team winning by a 3-1 record.

Regular rhythm of tennis balls pounded through activity period tournaments. Girls' doubles were won by Rosalyn Yoder and Kathy Brenneman.

Muscles strained as opponents, matched by weight, competed in wrestling contests. Tumbling skills practiced in physical education classes were perfected for demonstrations at the halftime of Friday night games.

The student body moves forward, resulting in:

—sleepy eyes following a successful slumber party.

—a lighter heart after unloading a problem to a friend.

—a well-deserved smile after receiving a good report card.

FRESHMEN: ASSIMILATED

We will always remember that first day of school. How were we to know where rooms 213 and 121 were? How were we to learn everyone's name? How were we to get from English to chorus in three minutes? But we soon learned and became so accustomed to routine that when second semester came, we met the plight of changing classes with little difficulty.

We also had to make other adjustments. Separation from grade school friends compelled us to reach out and broaden our friendships. The honor roll became an incentive for deeper study. The election of class officers and the selection of basketball teams encouraged us to try harder to excel in social and athletic areas.

These new experiences made us look forward to three more years where we would enlarge friendships, meet new challenges and succeed where we failed in our first year.

SOPHOMORES: EXPAND

Actually, being a sophomore was not so different from being a freshman. Sure, we were more confident this year, and we learned to know each other and the school better. But yet, we discovered we still had many problems to solve.

This primary goal of our school year was to find ourselves. Our studies helped us do this by offering a wide variety of ideas. We ascertained our talents: foreign language, artistic, and athletic abilities.

We watched, wondered about, and criticized accepted customs. We asked "how" and "why." Group discussions became more enjoyable and growth occurred because of our inquisitiveness.

Class parties seemed to be the hub of our social life and through the give and take of committee work, we prepared for a junior year with its numerous responsibilities.

JUNIORS: FORM OWN

Junior class officers: Firman Gingerich, vice-president; Miss Wyse, sponsor; Mr. Gerber, sponsor; Rich Miller, president; Janet Beckler, treasurer; Kathy Brenneman, secretary.

Initiative coupled with responsibility added up to achievement for us in our junior year.

We examined with pride the first issue of the REFLECTOR that we worked so hard to publish. The concession stand tested our originality in gaining the business of other students.

We learned more fully the meaning of cooperation as we worked with the seniors to produce "The Diary of Anne Frank." Basketball games provided fun and helped us become better acquainted with other students. Local gospel teams proved that we can serve and speak publicly.

Our class united as we planned the junior-senior banquet in all secrecy. Our first attempt at cheerleading resulted in team spirit while we yelled our top basketball players on to victory.

This year we realized that we had to and could accept responsibility. Now we are progressing toward the climax of our high school years.

Did?

SENIORS: ENJOY DINNER PARTY

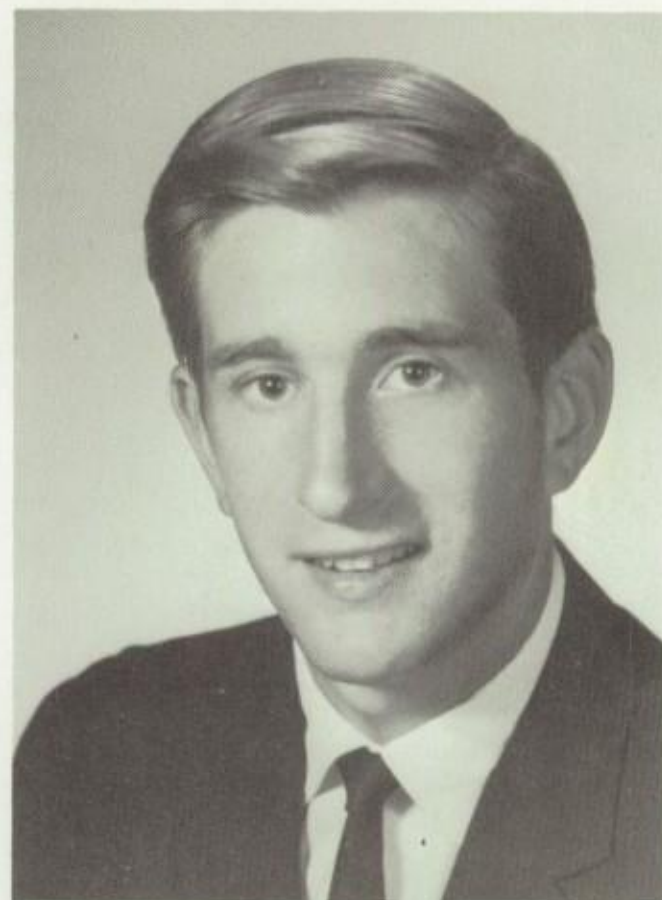

Senior class officers: Robert Miller, Vice President; Gilbert Troyer, President; Linwood Swartzendruber, Treasurer; Mr. Swartzendruber, Sponsor; Diane Miller, Secretary; Miss Yoder, sponsor.

With lingering memories we look at the Alma Mater we are leaving. A panorama of all the old scenes pass before us: preparing a chili supper for 1450 guests, participating in local and out-of-state gospel teams, sharing problems with little brothers and sisters or jokes with favorite teachers, and lifting our voices together in chorus. Scholastic achievements such as Macbeth and research papers have also secured a place in our memories.

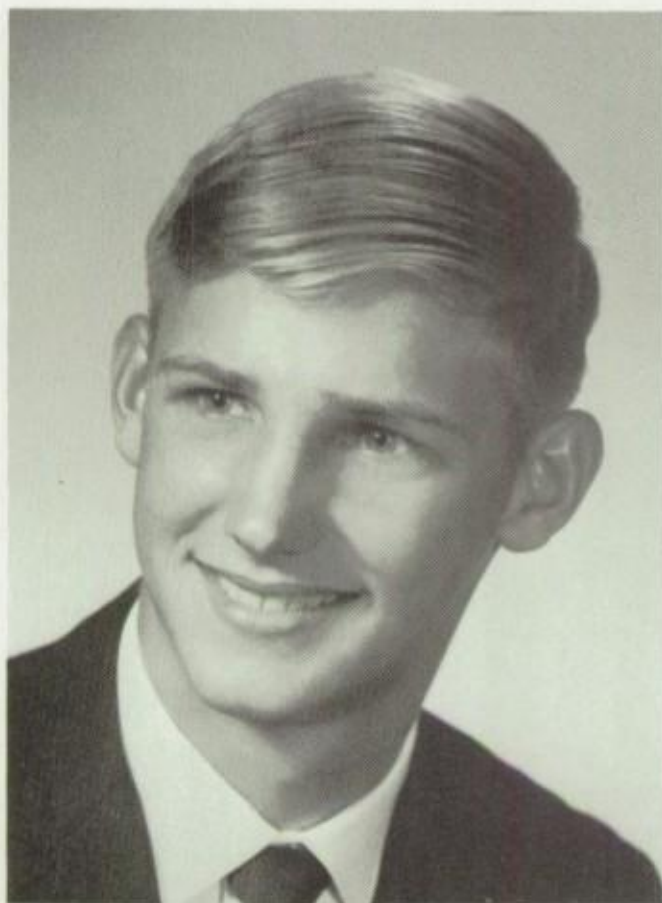

Dedicated chapel speakers gave new insights for life. Applying these, we venture into new areas. Our diplomas signify the end of a season of learning, and the beginning of another.

With appreciation, we of the 1967 Reverie staff remember the following for their services in the production of the Reverie.

—Fred Stoeker and the American Yearbook Company for publishing our yearbook.

—Hilda's Studio, Williamsburg, Iowa for professional photography.

—Patrons and advertisers for advertisements.

—Senior ad salesmen and all students who sold Reveries.

—Mr. Dan Miller for business advice.

—Donna Steckly for secretarial work.

NOW WE MUST MOVE ON. INTO THIS REVERIE WE HAVE ATTEMPTED TO CONVEY THE RESULTS OF OUR SCHOOL YEAR AND THE IMPRESSIONS IT HAS LEFT. DURING THIS YEAR WE HAVE SUCCEEDED AND WE HAVE FAILED. PERHAPS OTHERS WILL BENEFIT.
